selecting the first wine focus as riesling was an easy choice. it's hard to argue that any other white varietal can express terroir in such a diverse and pure manner.

from the dry, restrained labels of eden and clare valley, to the rare nectar of mosel trockenbeerenauslese, it's hard to think how someone cannot be seduced by this varietal's complexity and diversity.

special thanks must be given to heggies vineyard and leo bur-ing for their support in providing museum stock adding vintage depth and clearly illustrating riesling's cellar worthy reputation.

so by no means is this selection complete or even a who's who; more like a starting point for those who are both new and familiar to the world of riesling.

heggies vineyard

this tasting flight is designed to showcase an estate vineyard at different points of bottle maturation.

furthering the integrity and consistency of this flight is all vintages being sealed in stelvin closure.

tasting flight of heggies vineyard riesling 50mls each - $17

			gls
2009	estate	stelvin - 12.0%	10
2004	museum reserve	stelvin - 12.5%	12
2003	museum reserve	stelvin - 12.5%	14
2001	museum reserve	stelvin - 12.5%	16

heggies riesling classically shows lifted lemon, lime and citrus fruit flavours together with a crisp natural acidity and a chalky mineral character.

in their youth the wines dry, tight and restrained.

as bottle age increases, the once pronounced citrus characters move past concentrated lime, toward a richer spectrum of mandarin, guava & grapefruit.

in addition the wine develops toasty complexities which complement the richer fruits, at the same time the wine maintains a spine of cleansing acidity.

vintage 2007 europe

this tasting flight is an example of riesling styles in three highly regarded countries in europe.

the constant in this tasting flight is vintage 2007. the quality of riesling in france, austria & germany in this vintage was outstanding.

the first three wines in this flight are considered dry in respect to their appellation and vinification technique.

the mosel wine, classified as kabinet, in this instance a off-dry style.

riesling

eden valley, south australia

eden valley along with clare valley can both claim a deep tradition in the vinification of riesling. geographically the area borders the barossa valley with its defining attribute being elevation.

in youth the region typically expresses concentrated lime citrus. bottle maturation results in richer fruits & toasty complexities.

select vineyards also benefit from geological formations that impart a mineral complexity.

heggies vineyard

at over 550m's in altitude heggies is one of australia's coolest vineyards. the heggies rieslings are also featured in a tasting flight on page 13.

leo buring eden valley 'leonay' leo buring is one of the most recognizable names in quality australian riesling; 'leonay' is their flagship single region wine. this selection of both current and matured releases have kindly been provided from museum holdings to showcase the wines evolution and pedigree.

riesling

eden valley, south australia

'steingarten'

established in 1962, this single vineyard was born with the aid of dynamite and heavy machinery. with virtually no top soil this rocky outcrop is close planted mosel style, and yields riesling of intense minerality and citrus concentration.

alsace, france

alsace is located on france's eastern border shared with germany. its turbulent history of both french and german occupation has produced a unique wine region influenced by both cultures.

wines are predominantly mono-varietal and unlike most of france, varietal is stated on the bottle.

there is some confusion however, with no ability to judge if a wine is dry, off-dry, slightly sweet or sweet. producers have recognised this flaw, and have moved to create their own scales to help the customer understand what is being purchased.

domaine zind-humbrecht

this prestigious domaine is a pioneer of both biodynamic viticulture and driving force behind reduction of yields to make wines of concentration and flavour.

in 2001 zind-humbrecht introduced a sweetness index on their labels. the index is a overall impression of the wine meaning;

indice 1: totally dry

indice 2: not technically dry, no sweetness apparent on palate indice 3: medium sweetness, disappears with aging indice 4: sweet wine

indice 5: nectar

although not all indice's are covered in our selections, the complete scale gives perspective on this particular producers perception of sweetness in the appellation.

german wine classification qualitätswein mit prädikat (qmp)

this is germany's top level of wine classification ranging from kabinett, to trockenbeerenauslese. these wines may not be chaptalized. without further designation, the wine is at least off-dry. below are the characteristics associated with each qmp level.

kabinett

- high acidity, fully ripened
- floral aromatics
- pure terrior expressions: slate & minerality

spatlese

- higher acidity; offsets additional ripeness
- greater intensity and palate weight
- defined white fleshed fruit aromats

auslese

- high level of ripeness
- possible botrytis, not dominate character
- additional viscosity
- dry fermentation possible

beerenauslese / eiswein

- overripe grapes, dessert wine style
- botrytis afflicted
- eiswein is naturally frozen on vine
- eiswein classically is not botrytis afflicted

trockenbeerenauslese

- overripe shrivelled grapes
- extreme richness
- extreme vintage conditons required

additional designations

the only other valid designation for our focus is 'trocken'. a wine classified as 'trocken' is fermented dry and has between 4-9 grams residue sugar.
